BUILDING A SUSTAINABLE COMMUNITY

In partnership with the UGA Marine Extension and Georgia Sea Grant's Shellfish Research Lab on Skidaway Island, the Deer Creek Clubhouse helps rebuild Georgia's oyster reefs by returning oyster shells to the coastal marshes.

Once a week, researchers from the lab collect shells from Deer Creek and place them along the shoreline in the intertidal zone. These recycled shells provide an ideal surface for oyster larvae to attach and grow, eventually forming new oyster reefs that prevent erosion, stabilize shorelines, provide habitat for fish and crabs, and improve water quality by filtering pollutants from waterways.

Returning oyster shells to estuaries and rebuilding reefs also helps restore

Georgia's wild oyster population, which declined in the mid-1900s due to overharvesting, disease, and habitat degradation.

According to Tom Bliss, UGA Shellfish Research Lab Director, "Shell recycling is happening throughout the state thanks to the Marine Extension and Georgia Sea Grant, the Georgia Department of Natural Resources, and Shell-to-Shore – a nonprofit group whose call to action is 'Eat more oysters! Save your shells! Protect our Coast!' We are working collaboratively to support this key estuarine species."

By participating in this effort, The Landings Club returns thousands of pounds of shells to their natural coastal habitat each year, keeping them out of local landfills.
